

Course for PhD students at Aarhus BSS

Get better equipped as a lecturer and communicator

CUL's PhD course on planning, presentation technique and teaching

The aim of this course is to introduce PhD students to tools that, firstly, help them structure and carry out their teaching in an appropriate way and, secondly, strengthen their presentation skills so that they have a clear message in their teaching or at professional conferences.

Focus will be on key aspects of presentation techniques and we work with alignment between content, learning outcomes, and forms of teaching and examination. Finally, the course introduces a range of easily manageable techniques to activate students as well as a type of feedback that the participants will try themselves during the course.
